

February 2007 news update: Sachkhere, Treat plans, creation science

Contributed by admin
Saturday, 03 February 2007

The school's Director Nino reports that the schools are going well! Both buildings are full with 430 students. We are not sure that we will be able to continue to rent the Petriashvili building for the younger grades after this school year. We plan to add more classrooms to the Mzruri School as soon as the funds are available!

The school in the village of Sachkhere, 2 hours NW of Tbilisi, will open in the month of March, Lord willing. There will be 20 students in this school. More children "taught of the Lord and great will be their peace." This is a picture of those students that Jan took when Nino, Earl and Jan went to visit this village last spring.

Earl and Jan plan to spend the months of April and May back in Georgia. If the funds are available, they will stay through the summer months to assist in the building of new classrooms and for the start of the fall semester.

Earl is excited to be working with a Physicist who is a long-time friend. He helped significantly with the start of the School of Tomorrow in 1992. He is a respected and well-known Georgian who was a former Chancellor at Tbilisi State University. He has published several scientific articles comparing Creation Science with evolution and hopes to have Creation Science conferences this spring at the university.